THE WESTERLIES

— LIFE NEEDS SPACE —

To grow, to flourish, to prosper. To rejuvenate, to relax, to recoup. Life needs space. And there's no better metaphor for seamless space than free flowing winds. The Westerlies from Experion represents that abundance of space. Nestled amidst swaying trees, winding walkways and chirping birds, what you will discover here is an inspired and holistic lifestyle in low-rise homes.

The Westerlies

Well-balanced neighbourhoods that foster community living, with an integrated landscape plan. Put simply, this is the central design theme for The Westerlies. The township is extremely well-connected to the key focal points in NCR and is designed to offer a high quality, secure and holistic living experience.

In an urban context, it is important to capitalise on the value of open space. The plan envisions expansive stretches across the development, thereby ensuring that all areas in the master plan are no further than 100 MTS from a high quality open space. While it is expansive in nature, it has been designed to also provide localised features of interest and various places to unwind.

The Breeze forms the main avenue for entrance and exit and strives to put forth the best assets like open spaces to play and meditate which is enhanced by the continuous stretch from one side to the other. This central greenspine links up the entire site into a cohesive whole. All the units lie within a ten minutes walk from this landscaped green making it the social and cultural epicenter of the township.

The master plan

The master plan envisages the township as a community connected through breathtaking landscape and activity hubs, connecting bridges, and small play pods. It's a refreshing approach, to look at community living in its truest spirit. The development infuses a similar expression to the built-up forms as well, where the inside of the living spaces does not look into internal 'front yard' and the 'backyard' only but extends itself to The Breeze.

The master plan architects - HOK

Hellmuth, Obata and Kassabaum or HOK is a reputed global design, architecture and engineering and planning firm based out of London.

"We believe a good neighbourhood ensures safety and security for all its residents. It allows children to play in an uninhibited environment while providing an equal wide range of leisure and health opportunities for adults and the elderly. Weaved around over one kilometer cycling and jogging routes through 'The Breeze' promote social and cultural exchanges and foster a sense of territoriality and ownership through the community."

The architects' vision nilaA

Nilaa + PSDS is a design collaborative that pools in expertise from urban design, housing, architecture and interiors under a unified studio direction. The collaborative believes in executing quality urban and residential environments with strong linkages to nature at all scales.

"While designing a challenging brief of merging the outside and the inside and breaking the convention, we attempted to generate unique contemporary expressions. These were to be simple, elegant, functional and respect the natural elements like light and wind."

The landscape

The landscape follows the master plan thoughts and weaves energy within The Breeze with its philosophy of intervening life through nodes of activities like buds of a tree. This implied synergy makes life easy, cohesive and complete. The central landscape which is over 50 MTS deep at its maximum depth infuses life, and more importantly, meaningful spaces as compared to small pocketed greens. Within its limitation, architects attempted to make the green as a mode to bind the social fabric. The water management system and natural topography preservation is the township's attempt at giving back to the planet.

The landscape architects

Belt Collins, an international planning, design and consulting firm based in Singapore, has partnered in conceptualising The Westerlies.

"The representation of The Westerlies is captured in the most articulate way through the 'Tree of Life' - where the buds give rise to growth through fresher buds, symbolising the interconnectivity of all life forms. Symbolically the trunk acts as the main walkway through the estate. The framework of branches acts as the secondary paths and the leaves become the activity zones. The roots play the role of central nodes in the form of the plazas and performance spaces which also double up as kids' play zone and the stepped terrace, injecting vigour and flavour into the neighbourhood."
